BUTTERICK PATTERNS with complete directions for finishing

Deltor is a new and wonderful addition to Butterick Patterns which does for the skill and cleverness of your cutting, sewing and finishing, what the pattern does for the style of your garment.

As the pattern enables you to reproduce in your garment the style originated by a master designer, so Deltor enables you to reproduce, in the cutting of your goods, the dash and accuracy of its original cutter; to reproduce the skillful precision and niceties of its original tailor in your sewing and making; and to reproduce in the finishing those subtle touches, the very individualities of method, of its original creator.

W.C.T.U. DISTRICT CONVENTION

The ninth annual convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, Central Alberta District, was held at "Didsbury May 1 and 2. The eighteen Unions in the District were well represented by delegates, and the reports given showed marked progress in every department of work carried on. Mrs. Hassall's address on "Loyal Temperance Legion Work" was well presented, revealing the facts that the boys and girls from six to twelve years of age who systematically get a training in this line have a splendid foundation to enter their teens with a knowledge of the evils resulting from different types of intemperance, besides, they are more ready to take their share in uplift work that even age boys and girls should be glad to give their service in.

The Local Medical Contest was keenly contested. The contestants showed a splendid training with a gifted talent. The Misses Ruth Ramsey and Valma Trimble, of Red Deer, gave their selections in good form, but as only one can receive the medal, a young lady from Westcott received the prize.

One note sounded—All present who could claim citizenship in this district, were glad to be citizens of Central Alberta, because of the splendid majority given last October in favor of prohibition, and the well known facts that this part of the Province has better enforcement of the law governing the liquor traffic than elsewhere. Achieving this victory comes individual responsibility.

In the enthusiastic addresses given by our Provincial President, Mrs. Louise McKinnay, and Mrs. J. R. Whitney, Lacombe, they said in part: that in so many cases we fail to locate responsibility—shifting it on the government. Many people will not stand out at home to help enforce the laws because of unpopularity, but condemning the government, we condemn our selves.

First: We have to get the spirit to help enforce the law and of accepting the responsibility.

Second: We must know the law, and let it be known to the lawless liquor dealers, whether they be doctors, druggists, men and women bootleggers or the illicit manufacturer.

Third: We must talk law enforcement, stand for law enforcement for these reasons, to get a true idea what prohibition means to our country, as government control of the liquor traffic has proved a failure wherever tried, and we don't want it. Our task is not only a bone-dry Alberta, but a bone-dry Dominion. There can be no standing still for us who desire the complete abolishment of the drink from our fine Dominion.

The writer will submit these two self evident propositions: First: No body doubts that if the liquor traffic could be blotted out it would prove a universal good and a universal blessing.

Second: No thinking person believes that the liquor traffic, in its present withering, blighting, blasting form will go on forever. The thing is too horrible to contemplate. The man who fights the liquor traffic, mark you, is just as persistent as the traffic which he fights. Every business should fight the booze business from a purely business standpoint. The moment trust in the liquor trust; it is all profit for the trust and empty pocketbooks and sad homes to the consumer.

The men who make their fortunes (more money) out of the traffic are the ardent supporters for its existence, using the poor drinkers and many of our splendid boys, their raw recruits, present withering, blighting, blasting form will go on forever. The thing is too horrible to contemplate. The man who fights the liquor traffic, mark you, is just as persistent as the traffic which he fights. Every business should fight the booze business from a purely business standpoint. The moment trust in the liquor trust; it is all profit for the trust and empty pocketbooks and sad homes to the consumer.

A SLIGHT MISTAKE

The diner dropped his knife and fork with a clatter. "What's this stuff?" he demanded of the waiter. "Steak, sir, I think," replied the knight of the napkin, as he examined closely the contents of the plate. "Yes, sir, it's steak, right enough." "Right enough," roared the diner. "But the smell—why it's putrid. Here, smell it yourself." The waiter leaned confidentially over the diner's shoulder. "You're making a little mistake, sir," he whispered, glancing cautiously round, "it's that other gentleman's fish you can smell."

THE DRIVE FOR SETTLERS

No valid objection can be raised to the plan put forward by Major-General A. D. McEwen for co-operation between the provincial governments and the Western Canada Colonization Association. The scheme both in its conception and thoroughness of presentation would indicate that the man who framed it has a sure grip on his problem and should be given a fairly free hand to work it out.

The organization work already completed, the mission of the association, the national realization of the urgent need for increased immigration, the active sympathy of large business interests and the general public already revealed in a striking manner, and the whole object to better the economic conditions in the prairie provinces, and therefore throughout Canada generally, are most clearly set forth in the plain, appealing statement of Gen. McEwen.

The time has practically come for action—the actual bringing in of desirable settlers. The cash assistance of patriotic citizens towards this end has been such that no cash assistance is sought from any government, but there is an appeal for co-operation, legislative and otherwise. The association is a corporation without the power of gain. It cannot, under its charter, become interested in the sale of land on commission or for any pecuniary consideration. As Gen. McEwen says, it has "no axe to grind, except the public axe." Today, most of the desirable farming land is alienated from the crown, and vast areas of settled land is held by private individuals. This is the land which must be settled. The sale of such land must be put on a definite business basis.

The association appeals to the Western provincial governments to establish a provincial land settlement board. It asks that owners of unoccupied land shall be required to file with the board their own sale valuation of their land, the same to hold good for a period of two years, such valuation to be made the basis for the unoccupied land tax. Further provision is proposed for the sale of these lands, under a system of ample protection to owners at the price and on the terms filed with the land settlement board.

The proposition sets forth in the clearest possible manner that available land, at fair prices, will be the great inducement to settlers, hence the need for co-operation of land owners and of governments.

The whole proposition is a plain one. The appeal, in its general form, is a good one, and should receive the strong support of every person interested in the growth and welfare of Alberta.

HELPING IRELAND.

(Mail and Empire)
"Let us look to ourselves." Without American dollars Sinn Feinism probably long ago would have ceased, many men and women now dead would be walking the earth, millions of damage would not have occurred, and Ireland might now be adjusting herself to the self-government that Canada enjoys or be in a peaceful state of evolution toward that quasi-independence. New York Tribune.

The remarks were made in the course of an article upon the Irish situation and particularly with reference to the American movement to help the Irish. It is planned to raise a huge sum, amounting to many millions, to restore Irish homes and to industries which have been destroyed in the course of the warfare between Sinn Feiners and the Crown forces. This fund, it is announced, is to be administered by Irish Quakers who are not suspected of Sinn Fein sympathies. But the fact that the American Sinn Feiners are the chief organizers of the relief fund and that the money is to be expended exclusively, so far as can be known, on those who have been injured, whether accidentally or intentionally by the Crown forces, suggests that there is a strong anti-British slant to this movement.

If the Crown forces as a calculating piece of military policy, are destroying certain Irish dwellings in order to crush the Sinn Fein movement, the relief fund by restoring these dwellings is certainly operating against the Crown military policy, whether it be wise or whether it is outrageous. Moreover, what guarantees are the subscribers to the fund to have that the restored buildings will not again be razed? Considering the total population of Ireland, the number of persons thrown out of work or made homeless as a result of the Sinn Fein rebellion must be small. The sufferers are not numerous enough to make a severe drain upon either the sympathy or the savings of the population which is represented as being so strongly Sinn Fein. Why should not the Irish look after the Irish? Those whom the Irish believe not worth looking after would not doubt be cared for by Great Britain. Even if the relief fund is spent as impartially and as judiciously as possible, it will certainly have the effect of convincing the Irish people that the United States is ready to assist them by money in the struggle against British rule and that if only they continue their resistance even more effective help may be expected in due time.

THE NORTH'S TAR SANDS

Colonel J. K. Cornwall has announced that after thorough scientific investigation, a company in which he is interested will utilize the tar sand deposits of the north country as a paving material, says the Calgary Herald.

The government of Alberta might properly have looked into the possibility of making use of these deposits. Instead of leaving it to private enterprise. The government has ambitious plans for improving the highways of the province, but an impediment in the way of perfecting roads has been the lack of good binding and surfacing materials. It appears that the tar sands amply supply this necessity. With a railway entering the north country, which has been itself badly in need of traffic, the material could have been brought cheaply to a distributing centre, and could have supplied the deficiency of which the highways department has complained.

In the absence of government action, it is satisfactory to learn that Colonel Cornwall and his associates are planning to make this paving material available to the municipalities of the province. It is to be hoped that their confidence in the enterprise will justify itself. There is certainly plenty of demand in Alberta for a good and cheap surfacing ingredient for the provincial roads.

What purports to be the very newest type of milking machine is mentioned in Hoard's Dairyman. It was discovered by a Wisconsin farmer that some of his grease had developed a taste for cows' milk to such an extent that they were sucking the lactated fluid from the prior Holsteins in the pasture. That would have been the last act for the grease but for the interference of the farmer's wife, who intervened to save her pets. Two days later the good housewife attempted to fry one of the goose eggs for breakfast. It dropped on the man and then the lady discovered that the egg, instead of having a yolk and white like all other Christian eggs, was composed of real, pure, country butter. You do not believe that? Well, all right, neither do we.

THE C. A. F. AT CAMP BORDEN

For the benefit of those who may wonder what the Canadian Air Force are doing for the furthering of aviation interests, a few words about the course at Camp Borden may be in order, writes Pilot Officer P. Arthur Carswell.

All officers who did flying or other work in connection with the R. C. F. were given a chance to join up with the C.A.F. They are expected to report for a tour of duty at least once every two years, and if they fail to do so, they are automatically struck off the strength. A provincial secretary handles the work of enlisting, giving information, etc., for each province. Major J. McEwen, Secretary for Alberta, Officers are given a short course of 28 days' training in flying or ground work, and in special cases may be kept on longer to be used as instructors. The physical standard for flying is set much higher than during the latter years of the war, and care is taken that no one is allowed to fly when he is not perfectly fit.

The work was carried on all winter on a larger scale than in the case, as a considerable cut in Air Force appropriations caused a curtailment in the work. However, about seventy-five officers per month are now passed through. The Lehrer consists of brushing up on flying and all ground work in connection with flying. The machines used are Avro, Curtiss, D.H.9A, S.E.5 and Bristol. Only the best instructors are kept, and they are experts at their jobs. As well as giving a brushing up in their work, commercial pilot certificates are issued to those fulfilling requirements. In addition to the officers, there are about four hundred other ranks at the camp. Mechanics are given a short or long course similar to that given the flying officers. Outside of a couple of cases, the camp has had a singular freedom from bad accidents.

NOBLE FARMS GO INTO HANDS OF A RECEIVER

Largest Farming Concern in West Goes into Voluntary Liquidation; Large Liabilities.

The Noble Foundation, the largest farming concern in western Canada, has gone into voluntary liquidation. By an order issued Friday by Mr. Justice Simmons, Calgary, the court named H. F. McDonald, of the inspectorate staff of the Merchants Bank, in Calgary, has been appointed receiver for the Foundation.

Among the creditors interested the chief is Henry Carstons, of Seattle, trustee for the bondholders in the recent bond issue of $500,000 sold by the Foundation. The total liabilities are not revealed, nor are the assets. The Foundation, which is headed by C. S. Noble, controlled more than 30,000 acres of land, of which over 20,000 was in one farm, at the Cameron ranch, north-east of Lethbridge. This big ranch was purchased in 1917 from the Cameron-estate of New York. In addition to this, there are five other farms, with the town of Nobleford as their center.

During his operation of these farms,

Mr. Noble came to be known as one of the most expert dry farmers in the west. He was noted also as a seed expert. During the past two or three years, the Foundation has suffered from crop failure, although last year a large yield of wheat was taken from the Cameron ranch.

Prof. James Murray, formerly of the federal demonstration farm at Brandon, is secretary-treasurer of the company.

BASEBALL AT SYLVAN LAKE

A further report of the Sylvan Lake ball game has been handed in by our Sylvan Lake correspondent, as follows:

Sylvan Lake Baseball team played their first game of the season with the Red Deer Bankers, on the W. E. Payne homestead here, on the 8th inst.

The line-up was as follows:

RED DEER BANKERS
cf—W. A. Day, of the Royal Bank.
2b—Staggs, of Brainer's Bank.
1b—Capestick, of the Royal Bank.
p—McBride, of the Ceeper Bank.

rf—A. Morton, of Charlie Chuck's Bank.
1b—J. W. Shirley Wood, of the Imperial Bank.
ss—P. Johnson, of the Monarch Club.
2b—G. Dancocks, of the Mercantile Grocery Bank.

SYLVAN LAKE
2b—E. Fadden. ss—K. Learned.
cf—K. Standinger.
1b—C. S. Johnson.
rf—G. Reid.
c—V. H. Thompson, spare.
c—C. L. Johnson.
p—H. N. Johnson.
1b—B. Johnson.

In the first innings Red Deer made 5 runs. After that the Sylvan Lake boys tightened up, holding the Red Deer boys to two more tallies, making a total of seven.

Sylvan Lake were held scoreless until the sixth, when they got their first run, and two more in the eighth. This being the first game of the season, the Sylvan Lake boys will now be open for all comers.

SUMMARY OF THE GAME
For Red Deer Mr. Wood starred with this three-base foul hit. P. Johnson at short played a good game, and should be in better company. Capestick played an errorless game in the field (and swung like a garden gate).

THE TEST

When Mary returned from boarding school to the white cottage where her mother lived in the little country town about sixty miles from a large city, she was just nineteen, vivid, strong and beautiful.

His mother, who had struggled through the years in a vain battle with poverty looked over her approvingly, appraising her youth, bloom and vigor as so many assets in the marriage market.

It was to this end that Mrs. Valentine cultivated the acquaintance of James Holcomb, a blase man of the world with keen, humorous, discerning eyes, but with a heart which was old, much older than the fifty years to which he privately confessed.

And so trying to call back the youth which age, in an unprofitable life, always regrets, James Holcomb, attracted by Mary's fresh bloom and beauty, assiduously courted her. And as he showered his attentions upon her and plied her mother with gifts Mrs. Valentine smiled approvingly.

"Thank God," she thought, "Mary shall never know the meaning of grinding poverty, and perhaps it will come to an end for me."

But Mary had already given her heart. Since she was a tiny, white frocked mite she had been friends with Tom Daly, who had grown into a tall, upstanding, six foot young man of twenty-three. Tom was a marked gardener. To see the two saunter down the Main Street of the little town on a warm summer afternoon, she sweet and fresh and lovely and his upright, well-made and vigorous, was a sight upon which the gods might smile. And Mary as she saw the white fire of the glance which he sometimes bent upon her knew that he offered her the most acceptable and beautiful thing in the world, the first love of this young manhood.

But he was poor, and Mrs. Valentine bade her sternly to put him out of her life. She was only nineteen and her heart could not be touched by the devotion of a clever man of the world like Holcomb, who knew so well how to handle the heart of a woman. Then as her mother told her sordid story of the struggle she had had with poverty and of the life-long dream it had been that she, Mary, would follow the same path, the girl told Tom Daly on a soft, September evening as the stars twinkled wistfully down on them, half obscured by the clouds, that they must part. She would give no reason, and Tom was young and inexperienced. He did not know that her heart was breaking, as he strode away with youth's impetuous, angry, sore and broken.

In a few weeks Mary's engagement to Holcomb, the millionaire, was town talk.

"Have you seen her ring?" the townfolk asked each other. It was a wonderful stone they all said; came from Egypt and was in a strange setting. They were going away to live, crossed the neighbors, a grand match for a poor girl. Of course he was a little old for her, but then he was such a smart man and so well to do.

"Better be an old man's darling," croaked an old dame and all her cronies nodded assent.

But, ah, had they read the heart of Mary, there would have been a different story. For Mary's heart was not in the approaching wedding; it was over at the little cottage where Tom was. Tom said no word, but he had changed. His shoulders drooped, a little now, and his face often had a grey look heretofore quite foreign to him and in his eyes instead of the white light of his first devotion, there shone a reckless glare.

Mrs. Valentine, Mary and Holcomb were to spend a brilliant winter season in the city, during which time Mary was to be introduced to society and then her marriage was to take place in the spring.

It was after a marvellous ball one evening that Mary came to a realization of her heart. Holcomb as he bade her "good-night" drew her gently towards him and kissed her on the cheek. She recoiled and shivered from head to foot, and as they drove homewards while her mother talked she was very silent. For the rest of the night she tossed sleeplessly on her little bed, and in the morning wide-eyed and wretched she made her resolve.

News regarding Mary had not failed to come from the city to the little town, and her triumphs and beauty were common town talk. Only Tom Daly did not discuss the matter; only he remained silent when the others chatted. Some of them knew of his wound and some were sorry, but the general opinion seemed to be that he had aspired too high; that Mary could never have been happy with him, but in the stubborn pride of his youth he thought he could have made her far happier than she could ever be with her elderly suitor. But he would make no move, nor any word he thought doggedly. He was poor and every man has a right to be poor. If she had not been willing to wait, but no, she didn't, and he felt that his life was wrecked.

That evening he sat smoking quietly before his little open fireplace. The shadows were falling outside, and everything was quiet and still. He sat like this of late until the dawn, conjuring up pictures of Mary as he knew her and loved her. Mary he heard of her in her triumph in the great city, and most darkening of all, Mary as that other man's wife. To outsiders he was stern and non-committal, almost unnaturally so for such a young man, but sorrow is a great teacher. Now, however, he laid his pipe on the table and let his head sink into his hands. It was thus that Mary saw him as he crept in the early dawn path and looked in at the lattice window.

When she saw him she opened the door and rushed in crying. "Tom, I couldn't do it, I couldn't keep it up. If it gave me so much misery for a few months just to be engaged, it suddenly came to me what a heart-breaking thing it would be to carry it on through the years, and so I came. Mother is at home now. I could not wait until morning though, I had to come to see you tonight."

And for the first time Tom held his heart's desire in his arms, and the light that never shone on land or sea shone on both their youthful faces.

And so instead of a wedding in the big city, Mary and Tom were very quietly married at the parsonage. They would be very poor Tom knew, and he could not help a pang as he realized how much Mary had given up for him, but he determined that never again would he let her work to make it up to her. Then they both received a great surprise in the shape of a letter from James Holcomb containing a gift of $100,000.

Daughter of Head of Masonic Order in North Munster, and Police Inspector Killed.

Belfast, May 15.—Miss Barrington, only daughter of Sir Charles Barrington of Glenelg Castle, County Limerick, and head of the Masonic order in Saturday night by civilians while North Munster, and Police Inspector Biggs, were shot dead from ambush motorcade from Killybeg to Newport, County Killarney. Nine policemen, two soldiers and several other persons were killed Saturday and today in attacks and counter-attacks. For general and organized violence Saturday and today probably were the worst since January, 1919. All casualties except one occurred in the area of the southern parliament.

The exception was at Dromore, Tyrone, where a Sinn Féin was shot dead. One constable was shot dead and two others wounded Saturday at Drumahaire. A party of police going to their relief was fired on and two policemen hurt.

Fierce fighting followed an attack on the Bandon police barracks. The military and police swept the streets with machine guns at about the same time armed civilians marched through Dromahaire, County Cork. Being followed by auxiliaries in motor lorries they shot and killed several horses in the streets to delay their pursuit.

All roads south and west of Cork have been treacherous at many points. One hundred civilians were repulsed in an attack on the Clonsilla barracks with rifles and machine guns on Saturday. Four attackers were seen to fall.

Two gunners of the Royal Marine artillery stationed at East Ferry, County Cork, were shot dead Saturday night. This was the first attack on naval forces. At Castletown and Berehaven, County Cork, today, two soldiers were killed by civilians.

Bombs were thrown at military lorries on three occasions in the Dublin district today. Several occupants were wounded.

Head Constable Benson was shot and killed at Straley, Saturday.

A party of men, according to a Dublin Castle report, entered County Masherry, several miles east of Bandon, Saturday, and fired on soldiers who were off duty. The troops returned to barracks and the rebels fired on the barracks for 20 minutes. Two soldiers were slightly wounded.

Tonight two soldiers were wounded near Skibbereen. It is believed one will die.

HON. T. A. CRERAR SAYS GET WILD LANDS LISTED

Leader of National Progressive Party Endorses Principle of Legislation Requested by Western Canada Colonization Association, and its Multiple of Supporters Throughout Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Hon. T. A. Crerar's statement reads: "The proposal of the Western Canada Colonization Association that an inventory of unoccupied land be taken under government auspices in the prairie provinces, and that the owners of such land should be obliged to fix a price at which they would sell to incoming settlers is, I think, an excellent one. The fact that the price so fixed would be the value for assessment of the special Wild Lands Tax would keep the owner of the land down to a price that was reasonably fair. Land speculation, and for that matter speculation in other natural resources, has been one of the worst evils this country has suffered from."

It is generally agreed that Canada needs more people, but an immigration policy can only have permanent success if the people who are already living here are relieved of the artificial handicaps under which they have labored in the past, of which these speculations in land is one. The more people that come into the country the higher the land speculation raises the price. In the best interests therefore of the people of Canada the proposal that land held out of use should be made available for those who want to use it is sound and deserves the support of all good Canadian citizens. This step is in line with what the organized farmers of Western Canada have advocated for many years."

THEY VOTED UNANIMOUSLY

One day a venerable negro appeared at the office of the mayor at Atchison, Kansas, and asked assistance to obtain some wine.

"Who are you, and what do you want it for?" asked the mayor.

"I am de rev. Dr. Phileas Jones, D.D.," was the reply, "and ah, vint de wine for sacrilegious p'poses. Ah done been told dat you can get it for 'dat'."

"You mean 'sacramental,' don't you?"

"Yes, dat's it. Do ah get it?"

"Well," said the mayor, "we can give you a permit for wine for such purpose, but what kind do you want?"

"Well," answered the "reverend," "de congregation done took a vote on it lak' Sunday, and dey is unanimous for gin."

9,178 SETTLERS VIA C.P. FLEET

English Settlers Brought $175,000 Here to Buy Land

Despite the strengthening of restrictions against fresh immigration into this country, and the continuation of the ruling that all new settlers must show $250 in cash and their railway fare to their destination before being admitted into the Dominion, these new settlers continue to arrive in large and increasing numbers.

During the months of January, February and March no less than 9,178 new colonists entered St. John via the Canadian Pacific vessels alone, being 1,450 in January, 2,045 in February and 5,682 in March. These numbers would have been considerably larger, so the shipping men aver, if the $250 requirement had been dropped to the former $50 rate, as it was recently thought would be done. In fact, steamship officials state that many hundreds of intending immigrants cancelled their bookings upon learning that the high rate was to be maintained.

In detail, the Canadian Pacific records for the three months are as follows:

During January, five of the company's steamers arrived at St. John, bringing a total passenger list of 2,856, of which 1,450 were new colonists for Canada and 1,307 for the United States.

In February, six steamers arrived with a total of 5,022 passengers, of which 2,045 were new colonists for Canada and 1,430 for the United States.

Nine steamers arrived in March, bringing 9,851 passengers; 5,682 being new colonists for this country and 4,169 for the United States.

As to the type of colonists on these incoming vessels, the case of the "Minnetonka" was the last of the "Minnetonka" class, a Canadian citizen. This step is in line with what the organized farmers of Western Canada have advocated for many years."

She brought sixty-five farmers together with their wives, ninety children and $175,000 to invest in Canadian lands. These new settlers were personally conducted to their western destination by A. M. E. Hill of the C.P.R. Colonization and Development Department. Most of these were for the district around Lloydminster, a flourishing town on the Alberta-Saskatchewan boundary.

There were also 40 domestics bound for Regina and forty for Brandon. From which it will be seen that this country is procuring a goodly share of the sort of newcomer it most requires.

PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT BUILDING—HALIFAX

THE popularity among motorists of the McLaughlin Light Six is due to its efficient performance and to the low cost of operation. Owners frequently report tire mileage on the Light Six of 8,000 to 12,000 miles, and 20 to 30 miles to the gallon of gas.

In finish and appointments this model upholds the McLaughlin standard of beauty.

The automobile dollar reaches its limit in purchasing power when invested in the McLaughlin Light Six—"Canada's Standard Car."

FOR A DISTINCTIVE CANADIAN LITERATURE.

SOME PROMINENT MEMBERS OF THE CANADIAN AUTHORS' ASSOCIATION.

Although only a short time in existence, the Canadian Authors' Association has already proved itself a very active organization, and has done substantial work for the literature of the Canadian Author and Canadian literature. The Association grew out of a recent Convention held in Montreal, which was attended by over one hundred Canadian writers, many of whom have attained international fame—such as Basil King, Stephen Leacock, Arthur Stringer, Frank L. Packard, Elias Gorman, Archibald MacMechan, Robert Stead, Madge Macbeth, etc. It has received the cordial support of writers who could not personally be present, such as, Ralph Connor, Mr. Montgomery, Nellie McClung, Judge Emily Murphy (Janey Canuck), Harvey O'Higgins, Isabel Eccles, Mackay, and a host of others whose names are household words in Canadian magazines. Librarians were also present, such as Dr. George H. Locke, W. S. Wallace and Hector Garneau—also many of the Toronto publishers. A considerable number of the French-Canadian Authors were present, including M. Louvigny de Montigny and Madame Huguette, whose writings published under the pen-name of Madeleine are exceedingly popular with the French-Canadian population.

The remarkable interest taken in this Association is no doubt due to the growing spirit of national pride, which has evidenced itself so strongly in Canadian life, while a special reason for the Association could be found in the Copyright Bill before the Canadian Parliament, which appeared to endanger the rights of Authors as they had never been so endangered before.

A Committee was appointed to study and take action on this Bill, and within a fortnight a report was issued which undoubtedly has carried considerable weight with the Government. Other Committees have since been appointed to promote a number of practical schemes, with the object of increasing the percentage of book-readers in Canada and of enlarging the interest in Canadian literature. Thus, for instance, the publishers have agreed to co-operate with the authors in organizing a Canadian Book Week for next November when the attention of the book-reading public will be concentrated on works by Canadian Authors. This is a month in which a great many people get books to send overseas as Christmas presents, and it is planned also to encourage people in the West to send books by Western Authors to friends in the East, and people in the East to send books by Eastern Authors to friends in the West.

The Association anticipates that if the book-reading and book-buying public is increased in this country, the Canadian author will no longer be tempted to desert his native country for the more numerous centers of New York or London, but will find a sufficiently appreciative public at home. Already conditions in this respect are improving, and several Authors such as Arthur Stringer have come back from the United States to live in Canada. A nation without a literature is as hopeless as a man without a country, and the object of the Canadian Authors' Association to promote a distinctive Canadian literature is truly national in its scope.

A VOLUNTARY WHEAT POOL IS SUGGESTED AS EXPERIMENT

STUART AND RIDDELL THINK IT PREFERABLE TO LEGAL CONTRACT FORM.

Regina, May 11.—A voluntary scheme of wheat marketing, operated by a specially created organization directly responsible to its farmer patrons, provided sufficient demand for voluntary pooling exists and providing the government is desirous of acceding to that demand, is the recommendation contained in the report on wheat marketing prepared by Stuart and F. W. Ridwell, of the Canadian Board at the request of the Saskatchewan government.

The report suggests that a voluntary pool should be conducted on an experimental scale, and that an attempt be made to embark on a full-fledged scheme. In the first place we believe that the most perfect form of a centralized wheat marketing agency at the present time can be created only under the control of a national organization, says the report.

VOLUNTARY FORM DESIRABLE

"And, secondly, we believe that in considering any form of wheat marketing pool, involving less than complete national control, one based upon voluntary co-operative effort on the part of the producer, is preferable to one bound by the provisions of a legal contract.

Dealing with the principle of any form of pool the commission emphasized that success or failure depended upon the degree of support given by the producers. While federal control through such an agency would be desirable, the report stressed distinct advantages to the producer, it was worth mentioning that a voluntary pool or a semi-national contract pool successfully operated with a comparatively limited patronage would be able to exercise a more effective influence over trade practices to reduce to a minimum any disadvantages which the present system may have developed.

OBJECT TO CONTRACT POOL

Objections were voiced in the report to a contract pool in view of the conditions which might arise "under which either party to the contract would find the provisions onerous to say the least. This, in turn, would bring into play, psychological influences which might easily be sufficient to break down the contract scheme. In other words a binding contract for several years during a transition period, and applying to so many producers, would be a most undesirable feature of the scheme. It appears to us to be one of the least desirable of steps to be taken with a view to improving marketing conditions. There is nothing that a producer would be required to do that he cannot do of his own free will. It is much more to producers' interests that they should realize this fact than that they should sign a contract only to learn it was a barrier to the real aims.

PLAN OF OPERATION

Dealing with the possibility of operating a voluntary pool on an

"Why did you strike the telegraph operator?" asked the magistrate of the man who was summoned for assault.

"Well, sir, I gives him a telephone to send to my gal, and he starts readin' it. So, of course, I ups and gives him one."

"What is a person called who steals?" asked the auctioneer but there was no answer.

"Herbert, suppose I were to put my hand in your pocket and take out a penny, what would you call me?" Herbert: "Please, sir, you would be a conjurer."

A man who had purchased a couple of shilling tickets in a lottery won the prize and he had been paid. His friend noticed that joy was somewhat mitigated. "What's the matter?" he asked. "Isn't it a pity," he replied with dejection, "that I bought that second ticket?"

A smartly-dressed woman was sitting in an omnibus when a quiet-looking young man accidentally trod on her dress. She leered him for ten minutes, and wound up by saying: "A gentleman would have apologized."

A LITTLE NONSENSE NOW AND THEN

"I've just saved a pound, mummy."

"How did you do that, darling?" "Yes, he bought this guinea pig for a shilling."

She: "Cladys is a fool." He: "Do you know that Gladys has promised to be my wife?" She: "That proves it!"

Clegg: "He gave everyone to understand the he was the big gun at the office." "Tyrer: "Perhaps that is why he was fired."

Temperance: "Advocate: "Stay, brother! Do you think that glass of white filth will quench your thirst?" Optimist: "Lumme, I 'ope not!"

"So your brother has got a job as an artist on a newspaper?" "Yes, he draws the crosses on the pictures to show where the crimes were committed."

"And what is an egg?" asked the missionary who was testing his hopeful pupil's knowledge of English. "An egg," replied the boy, "is a chicken not yet!"

Visitor, who has been listening to a long story about a shipwreck: "And now did you feel when they got you out of the water?" Ancient Mariner: "Not half so dry as I feel at this moment."

R.O.C.: "I'm proud to hear you and Private Murphy were so calm and collected when the explosion occurred." Private O'Halligan: "Shure, sor, or, I was calm enough, but it was poor Morko that was collected."

Mother (horrified at Betty stuffing a bun into her mouth): "Darling! Darling! You mustn't swallow that whole!" Betty: "Hole. What hole?" "With withering contempt: "How can you swallow a hole?"

"Ten and cake, please—Madelira and fruit." The waitress brought a cup of tea and a slice of fruit cake. "Another slice, please—Madelira." Came another slice of fruit cake. "Didn't you hear me asking for Madelira?" "No," I thought you kept calling me "My dearie."

A lecturer has been describing some of the sights he has seen abroad. "There are many spectacles in the world that one never forgets," he said. "I wish you would tell me which I can get a pair," exclaimed an old lady in the audience. "I am always forgetting mine."

Mother: "Tommy, are you tall enough to reach that bottle on the kitchen shelf?" Tommy: "Not if it contains cod-liver oil."

Dora: "What shall I sing for you, Jack?" Jack: "Have you a song with a refrain?" Dora: "Yes." Jack: "Well, then, please refrain."

"To whom shall I go to get advice on how to succeed in life?" "Go to some one who has failed; the successful people are too busy to talk."

"I am proud to say that my grandfather made his mark in the world," remarked a conceited youth. "Well, I suppose he wasn't the only man in those days who couldn't write his name!" replied a friend.

Doris: "I thought you were going to kiss me when you put your lips just now." Jack: "No—er—it was only a piece of grit in my mouth."

Doris: "Then for goodness sake swallow it—your needed some."

"Pa," asked little Thomas Gipping, "was a counter-irritant?" "A counter-irritant?" said Mr. Gipping, who was reading his paper. "I guess that must be a woman who shops all day and doesn't buy anything."

"Why did you strike the telegraph operator?" asked the magistrate of the man who was summoned for assault. "Well, sir, I gives him a telephone to send to my gal, and he starts readin' it. So, of course, I ups and gives him one."

"When I go back to my country," said a Swiss lady, "I shall tell my friends they must be up to everything. Everything is up. I am roused up in the morning. I wake up. I get up. I button up my dress. Why up?"

I button it down. Then I eat up my breakfast, and I drink up my coffee, and then somebody washes up the pots and cleans up the house. It is all up. You lie up when you are ill, and you save up for a rainy day. Your English language is very funny. My employer put his head in my office the other day. I want you to stop tonight!" So I got up and put my clock on. When he saw me he got quite worked up. He said, "Why have you got your clock on?" I told you so, I said "I have stopped." Why was he angry? I took into the story, and 'stop' means 'leave off,' and he meant me to go on."

BARNES CIRCUSAGENT ARRANGES FOR BIG SHOW

World's Greatest Trained Animal Exhibition Coming Here for Two Performances on Friday, June 10th.

Charles A. Pheneey, Contracting Agent for the A. G. Barnes Wild Animal Circus, which is to exhibit in Red Deer on Friday, June 10th, began busy day's work Tuesday of last week before the average business man thought of breakfasting.

Exhibiting was obtained, license was taken out, water for the hundreds of people and many more hundreds of animals was contracted for. Teams for the bill-posters of the first advertising car, which will reach here one day next week, and for the car No. 2 coming a week later, were obtained. Feed for the people and animals, bread, advertising space in newspapers and billboards, and the numerous other requisites for caring for this large family, which will be done in one day by one man in a strange town, to be repeated every day for a month to come.

Mr. Pheneey reports the show as opening its present season at Pomona, March the 5th. The circus was wintered in Culver City, California, and while it is an old story, yet he will not help emphasizing the fact that the show paraphernalia and entire equipment has been entirely re-equip this year, many thousands of dollars being spent in the refurnishing. Many new features have been added to the program and the show is a marvel of real scientific beauty.

A great many new animals have been obtained, which is a prime consideration of the Barnes circus. Barnes' circus is well known in this section and well liked for its unexcelled wild animal exhibits and educational purposes.

The slogan of the show is, "The show that is different." The reason of the slogan is the fact that it is the only real and exclusive animal show in existence. Every animal in the aggregation has been taught through scientific training to perform.

GERMAN CRIMES INFLECTED ON BRITISH

Captain Muller, a German who was in charge of 1,000 British war prisoners at Havel Martel in April, 1918, is being tried in London. The evidence is being taken by Sir Charles Birn, Chief Magistrate for the case in the trial of the German war criminals at Leipzig. Terrible tales of suffering are being detailed by the witnesses.

It is charged that 1,000 men were herded together in three huts. There were no floor boards, bedding or camp utensils, and the men had to lie on the floor. There was not even room for all of them to lie down. There was no sanitary arrangements, and the only water supply for washing was in a small trough, the water in which was changed about once in a fortnight. Rats were everywhere. No meat ration was supplied. The men rapidly became weak, and were compelled by blows, in spite of their weak condition, to go to work. Dysentery at once set in. Within a month five hundred men were down, and it took the deaths averaged about six men per day. It was also alleged that Muller committed many acts of violence on the prisoners. It appeared to have been his amusement to ride his horse into the ranks of the prisoners on parade, scattering them in all directions and in many cases doing serious bodily harm. On many one occasion he was actually seen taking photographs of the men while they were in the agonies of dysentery, which indicates the character of the man.

SMOKE HOUSE FROM BARREL

Where enough meat is not smoked to make it worth while having a regular smoke-house, one may take barrel and a few lengths of stove-pipe, or, if he wants to make a better job, sewer pipe, and make a very satisfactory smoke-house. To make such a house proceed as follows:

Dig a trench pit from 12 to 18 inches deep, throwing the earth all out on the side. From near the bottom of this pit lift a trench of sufficient length to hold one or two joints of stovepipe, at such an angle as will bring the end away from the pit to the surface of the ground. Over the end of this pipe set a common four barrel or large cask, as may be needed, and, having removed the bands, bank up around it with loose earth, so that no smoke can escape at the bottom. Hang the hams, etc., in it, using some round stick to run through the strings. Putting a cover to the sticks will leave space enough for draught to let the smoke pass freely. Build a smoke fire of damp wood in the pit and you will have a cheap, safe and efficient smoke house with very little trouble.

DRUGS VS. FAITH

In these days of hypnotism, psycho-analysis, mid-healing, faith-healing, and all the rest, the old-fashioned methods of treatment are apt to be under-estimated if not entirely overlooked.

In the realm of the physician everything now is "mind," or "suggestion," or "faith," or the "unconscious," physical and material remedies are relegated to comparative obscurity. In fact, the pendulum has swung violently the other way, and it seems desirable to make a sober and righteous adjustment.

The advice given by the worldly-wise physician to the youthful tyro—"Hurry up, my boy, and prescribe this drug while it is doing good"—expresses a half-truth in a picturesque way.

No doubt many drugs have a vogue for a time and then are heard of no more; but that is often because another drug with similar qualities but fewer disadvantages replaces it.

On the other hand, a good many drugs have stood the test for years and remain today as a tower of strength when wisely used. I need only cite such well-known specifics as quinine for malaria, iron for anaemia, bromide for nervous irritability, and morphine for pain—all old fashioned, but as useful today as ever they were.

Of course the patient of the present moment is not drenched with drugs as was the sufferer of fifty years ago. He wisely prepares the way for a doctor who is not followed by a pill, a potion, a mixture, and probably a leech, a mustard plaster, or a liniment. He was attacked from every side, possibly with the hope that something at any rate would hit the mark.

GOOD BAND MUSIC WILL BE A FEATURE OF MAY 24 SPORTS

A good band is an absolute necessity on Sports Day. Red Deer is favored in having a first class band organization "right on the ground." The "Co. Band," advertised on the bills, and the "Veterans and Citizens' Band" are practically one and the same thing. On occasions connected with the Militia the members of the Band turn out in khaki uniforms, at other times they wear the regular blue uniforms; the personnel in either case is nearly identical.

The Band has made a name for itself in recent concerts. Bandmaster Pullen has brought the new players along nicely, and the boys are lacking a lot of real good music at the present time.

On the 24th, as at other times, the Band will play several familiar marches, and will make use of some of the following list of new music that is regarded as standard wherever good Bands are heard. The boys are making excellent progress on such numbers as the Mikado, Morning, Noon and Night in Vienna, Post and Peasant. Red Deer has reason to be proud of its Band, and the citizens are supporting it loyally.

Here is the list of music purchased recently:

THE PENHOLD & DISTRICT U.F.A. CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATION, LIMITED, PENHOLD, ALBERTA

To our Customers:
The folly of credit in connection with the sale of goods for immediate consumption is recognized by all classes at the present time.

Those who sell the goods are forced to charge exorbitant prices to cover the interest on amount of credit extended, and to cover the losses accruing from "bad accounts".

The consumers on the other hand thoughtlessly abuse the privilege of obtaining goods on credit; and consequently obligate themselves beyond the prospects of recovery. As a result of this, the "Credit System" is being condemned as unfair and unjust to all concerned.

Instead of continuing to conduct our business under this old abusive method, we shall, in the future, sell our goods only for cash, and on approved thirty day credit basis.

We know that under this plan our dealings will be more pleasant, and more to our mutual interest from a financial standpoint.

In view of this we solicit your hearty co-operation in adapting ourselves to a method whereby we shall own that which we hold.

Your patronage is respectfully solicited.
